FREE COLORED QUEEN ON PAYMENT OF FINE FOR TAKING JEWELRY

"Marion of the Sheban Butterflies" Released From County Jail—Took Evansville Girl's Rings.

Marion Taylor, "Colored Queen of the Sheban Butterflies," who has been confined to the county jail since Monday, when she was unable to produce thirty dollars security for her appearance this morning in the municipal court, after pleading not guilty to larceny charges, was released from the jail with the payment of a fine and cost of $17.40.

Marion, who took a train for Evansville, where Clarence Powers, who employs her to trip a light fare, is the lead of a "black and tan" show, is showing Rock County how the latest plantation and oriental steps are stepped at the present time.

The queen was charged with stealing two cheap rings from the ladies' toilet room at the Chicago & North-western depot. She emphatically denied that she took the jewelry with intent of theft, and claimed she found them lying on the washbowl. They were the property of Miss Doris Beck, an Evansville girl, and were worth a dollar and a half each.

PLAN MODEL SCHOOL TO TRAIN TEACHERS

District School Conducted Along Modern Pedagogic Lines to Be Feature of Training School Course.

Arrangements have been completed by Principal Louth of the Rock county training school for the coming year at the Jefferson building for the purpose of instructing the students in the practice of teaching. The department will be under the supervision of Miss Ethel Jenkins of Eau Claire, a teacher of experience in training school methods.

The model school will be made to resemble as nearly as possible a district school, and the training school graduates will be called upon to teach after they have completed their course of instruction. There will be four pupils, eight from five different grades: the first, second, third, sixth and seventh. They will remain in the model school for the period of one year, an agreement having been reached with the scholars and their parents which will insure the permanency of the plan. The pupils will be along the most modern pedagogic lines as employed in the best rural schools. The young women will be given every opportunity to observe the results of their teaching methods. The training school will be conducted in such a manner as to make rapid progress if not more rapid progress than those in the grades. The experiment will be most interesting and will be watched closely by school teachers of Rock county.

In the other departments of the training school, which opens on Tuesday, Aug. 29, Professor F. J. Louth will be in charge. Mr. Louth will be in charge of the department of domestic science at the training school last winter, that she expects to return to the second quarter for a large enrollment in the training school. Letters and circulars have been sent to high school graduates who are contemplating taking up the teaching profession.

PLAN IS TO FIGHT "CUT CORNER" CASE

Due to Misunderstanding Yesterday, Judge Maxfield Today Sets Aside Fine—Up Again in a Week.

Judge Harry L. Maxfield this morning set aside the fine of ten dollars and costs, amounting to thirteen dollars and eight cents, levied yesterday against Sam Hall for a city automobile ordinance violation, cutting the corner of Main and Milwaukee streets, when Attorney Charles E. Pierce explained to the court that due to a misunderstanding neither he nor his client appeared to defend the charge. On the agreement of City Attorney William H. Dougherty, Judge Maxfield set aside the fine.

The action would again come before the court a week from yesterday. From the course pursued by Attorney Pierce this morning it is evident that the case and attempt to make good the statement he made to Officer Charles R. Handy, who made the arrest and the complaint, that the ordinance would not stand.

Gets Bible Lost in War.

Romance that seems like fiction attended the restoration of the old Bible lost by Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Markham of New Orleans, La., to the owner.

Mrs. Carrie E. Kirschmann of Reading, Pa., had the book for many years, but never knew until a few days ago to whom it belonged. There was a name in it, but no address.

Doctor Markham was chaplain general of the Confederate veterans' organization for many years. He served throughout the Civil war in the Confederate army and lost the book on a battlefield. It was picked up by a northern soldier, and 12 years after the war Mrs. Kirschmann's father bought a lot of old books at auction. The Markham Bible was in the collection.

Recently Mrs. Kirschmann visited in New Orleans. While there she attended a wedding in Lafayette Presbyterian church, and asked the name of the clergyman officiating. She was surprised to hear the name T. R. Markham, the same as in the old Bible at home, and communicated with Doctor Markham.

Everybody's Sentimental.

The truth is that we are all sentimental at heart, whatever our culture. Even though we appreciate Brahms, shall we not find some pleasure in the repertoire of the hand organ, and though we admire Botticelli, shall we utterly condemn Darby and Joan? There are moods in which Jean Ingelow and Mrs. Hemans are not unwelcome. The thousands still weep over the death of Little Nell, though the critics sneer—Robert M. Gay, in the Atlantic.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1916, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 99.

The physicians of R., prior to an indignation meeting held by the estate operators and property owners of the town, were indignant over the discovery that every butcher shop of the community was secretly using anhydrous sodium sulphite, as published statements, made before the development of an embarrassing situation, indicates the honest attitude of the entire medical profession toward the employment of chemical food preservatives of any kind.

The diet of a child in one of the butcher shops was a sad story to Dr. X., member of the board, who denounced the outrage in terms that permitted no mistake concerning the meaning.

The finding of anhydrous sodium sulphite in the shops of two well-known retail butchers of R., accompanied by the accusations of these men, were also using sodium sulphite, produced magical results.

A third shop was invaded. "No, we have no preservative here. We believe its use is illegal. We can tell you so, and so can the health department, but there is no such thing here as preservative. We don't use it." Flery meat was on exhibition.

We left the establishment and returned in an hour accompanied by Health Officer G.

"Now, Mr. Butcher, you didn't use any preservative when we were here an hour ago. Perhaps you have found some since."

"No answer."

"Come on, produce!"

"I told you we had none of that stuff here."

"So much the worse for you. Unless you produce the stuff in two minutes we shall look for it ourselves and you must take the consequences."

"Well, we only have a little bit."

He turned from the shop into the hall. We followed him.

Out of one hall at right angles he went into another. Mr. Butcher finally halted in a dingy room under the stairs. He pulled out an old coat, stuck his hand into the darkness and brought forth a box of preservative.

"Nothing doing in this place on preservative," said everybody in the shop. "You won't find that dope here."

Under a counter in the rear of the shop we located a product labeled "Freeze-Em," made by B. Heller & Co., Chicago.

On the label were these words: "The active principle of 'Freeze-Em' is a white crystalline powder which when the powder becomes damp. This can be advantageously used in many ways."

"Yes, you got the stuff, all right; but we never use it."

"What is this little glass shaker with the perforated top sitting so snugly beside the Freeze-Em?"

"I don't know."

Examination of the contents of the glass shaker revealed the presence of anhydrous sodium sulphite.

"You have no use for this stuff in this place?"

"When you do not object if we take it away?"

"Certainly not; you can have it. Wrap it up for the gentlemen."

A chemical analysis made by Professor George Ferguson of Columbia University confirmed the nature of the stuff.

We entered establishment No. 5.

"No, we do not use preservative. Come right with me into the icebox and see for yourself."

The butcher took us all over the place. After such portions of the scenery had been reviewed as seemed to be reviewed, we decided to review the sections of establishment No. 5 which the butcher somehow or other forgot to include in serving as guide.

A little artificial illumination and a dark hole resulted in the discovery of a box labeled "XXX Enterprise Chemical Preservative."

AGRICULTURAL and GARDEN DEPT

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

Question: I wish to get some perennials started in my garden. When is the best time to put them in, and what would you recommend?

Answer: You may start perennials in two ways. You may buy the plants at the florist in the spring or you may grow them from seed. The latter is, of course, cheaper if you have time to devote to gardening, and the more pleasurable also for you have the benefit of outdoor air and exercise.

The following is a list of perennials that may be grown from seed which I planted this month will give you a fine display of flowers next season.

Pearl Achnella, a white flower on a freely branching plant growing two feet tall and blossoming from early June to the end of August.

Colombine, very easily grown and thriving in sun or shade, it blooms for about two months and may be had in an assortment of colors.

Coreopsis with finely cut foliage and yellow flowers blossoms from May to October. This also thrives in sun and shade.

Larkspur, a tall plant with blue flowers from four to six feet high with spikes two to three feet long.

Blanket flowers (Gallardia) are easily grown and are fond of sun. The flowers are borne on long stems and so are good for cutting. They also last long after cutting.

Baby's Breath (Gynophris palustris) is a hardy plant with many branches and tiny white flowers which blend beautifully with the stiff, gallardias and coreopsis in bouquet.

Campion, has vivid orange scarlet flowers and is very hardy, blooming from June to September.

Pinks, Dianthus, are well known flowers and fond of the sun and general favorites.

Sweet Williams (dianthus barbata) is an old fashioned plant blooming from June to August.

All of these plants may be grown from seed by the amateur if he has good garden soil of pliable loam. The seed should be dug deeply and fertilized with well rotted manure. Then sow the seeds according to directions on the packet. The plants may be transplanted either this fall or next spring. If done this fall they will be ready to start growing at the opening of spring.

There are, of course, many other perennials, but these are some that the amateur may grow easily and which he must plant at once if he wants blossoms from next year.

The experience of one of the boys in the calf contest is interesting and worthy of record.

He was a student of the high school in the agricultural course, and had taken a deep interest in animal husbandry and in stock judging. When the calf contest was started he was eager to go into it, and with his father's consent went to a well known stock breeder and selected a calf, making use of the knowledge he had gained in high school. It was a Short-horn heifer, pure bred, of the Bates strain, and he paid for it fifty ($50) dollars. He took it home and gave it the best of care, feeding it according to directions and keeping account of the cost of the feed.

The calf weighed ninety-six pounds when he bought it, February 1st. August 1st, it weighed 425 pounds, having made a gain of 334 pounds at a cost of forty-three dollars for feed.

He took his calf to the fair having been one of the winners in his district. He did not receive one of the first prizes, but he did receive an offer on his calf from a farmer who was looking for something good for $150, a clear gain of fifty-seven dollars.

This little story indicates several things. It teaches the truth of the saying, "If one is going to feed and care for stock he would better select good stock for it takes no more time and costs no more than to feed poor stock."

Considering the price paid for the calf and the price for which it sold, the incident may also illustrate the adage, "Nothing is risked, nothing is gained." It certainly does show that good stock can not be bought cheap and that it is worth what it brings, for the breeder who sold the calf or the farmer who bought it are speculators. The calf was worth fifty dollars to the boy on February 1st and on July 1st it was well worth $150 to the farmer who bought it. All in all it is only another striking incident which shows that good stock pays.

SUMMER CLUB HOLDS ITS CLOSING PICNIC

Last Outing of Season is Held Thursday at Orfordville.—Program Proves Entertaining. (By Mrs. Abbie Helms.)

About fifty ladies from Janesville went to Orfordville on Thursday to attend the picnic of the Summer Club. Mesdames Carr and Clark from Milton, Boardman and Fairchild from Evansville and Mrs. Homer Taylor, living near Beloit, being of the number. The exercises were held in the Lutheran church, the business meeting being called immediately on arrival of the ladies.

The president, Mrs. Donna of Milton, is absent, the vice-president, Mrs. Morse, presided. Mrs. E. O. Kimberley made a report of the last meeting, held at Milton. She also gave a report of the work of the philanthropic department for the season, and also on the funds in the treasury.

About seventy-five were served at the noon hour to the beautiful luncheon provided by the Orfordville Study Class. At the program in the afternoon a very complete and interesting paper on landmarks was given by Mrs. Kimberley. She spoke of the early missions and early settlements and the monuments marking these at Portage, Waukesha, Menasha, Racine, and Fort Adkinson. The tablet marking the group of missions at Baraboo was mentioned, and many others. She stated that the state was indebted for most of these to the work of the club.

The tradition of Ho-nou-nega was given and many incidents in the early history of Janesville, and some of the local antiquities in ancient buildings mentioned.

Mrs. Boardman gave a splendid paper on "Woman Lawyers," in which she said there was a relatively small number compared to the other professions. She especially commended the use of women lawyers in the cases of women and children and spoke especially of the Los Angeles court, the juvenile courts of Denver and Chicago and the guardianship of children instituted by women of Chicago for the estates and care of orphan children.

Miss Sadie Clapp had an exhibit from the array of children's work at the recent fair. It was done by the school children of the rural districts, and is mainly the results of the hour a week industrial work, allowed by recent laws. She described what the schools were attempting in this line and also the manual training and the domestic science work, the latter to be fostered by the warm lunch provided for the noon meal. This meeting is the last of the summer unless a later one is called for some special reason.

REAL FACTS.

Senator La Follette is again in Wisconsin. This time he is explaining to the voters his reasons for voting for the democratic Underwood tariff bill and why he is opposed to a strong policy for the defense of our nation. At Waupun he gave the folks a long history of the tariff policy of this country from Alexander Hamilton down to himself. He proved that republican protection is necessary to the welfare of this country. And then he said that he voted for the Underwood bill to reduce the cost of living—the democratic campaign argument of 1912. The senator forgot to mention that on May 28th, 1913, while the Underwood bill was before congress, he said that the protective tariff was a policy of the United States gone forever and would never come back. How the democratic tariff has reduced the cost of living, the senator did not mention—and that was well in view of the present prices of everything.

The senator said he was sorry that the farmers were not as well protected by the democratic tariff as he wished they might be. Was he truthful when he made that statement? Let his record answer. On August 16th, he voted with the democrats to reduce the wool schedule. He voted the democratic ticket that day. On September 9th, he voted with the democrats against a proposed amendment to take wheat off the free list and put on a tariff of fifteen cents per bushel. This item on wheat was the only question before the senate when this vote was taken. Senators Norris and Kenyon, now here talking for him, voted for this amendment. On the same day, he refused altogether to vote on an amendment for a fifteen per cent duty on fresh meats and to take them off the free list. Senators Norris and Kenyon voted for this. Again on the same day, Senator La Follette voted with the democrats against an amendment for a tariff as follows:

"192. Barley, 20 cents per bushel of forty-eight pounds; oats, 15 cents per bushel of thirty-two pounds; wheat, 20 cents per bushel of sixty pounds; flaxseed, 25 cents per bushel of fifty-six pounds."

In the original bill barley carried a 15 cent tariff, and oats, wheat and flaxseed were on the free list. Does the senator's voting record bear out his statement that he is sorry the democratic tariff is not more favorable to the farmer, or does it contradict that statement? The senator not only voted for the whole bill, but he voted for the separate and distinct items in it involving farm products with the rest of the democrats. Senators Kenyon and Norris voted with the republicans against the bill.

The plan of the senator's whole political career is that he alone is right and that everybody having a thought out of harmony with La Follette's political fortunes, is wrong. Every prominent man in the state that has ever been connected with him and who has been at all independent, has been declared false as hell. There are no exceptions. Ex-Governor W. D. Hoard, Senator Isaac Stephenson, ex-Governor James Davidson, ex-Lieutenant Governor W. D. Connor, Attorney Generals Levi Bancroft and Frank L. Gilbert, State Senator Theodore W. Brazen, ex-Governor F. E. McGovern, Colonel Munson, State Treasurer Henry Johnson, and many others might be named. Senator La Follette fights them all from the moment they do not make him their only political hero. He fought President Roosevelt and now calls him false and a reactionary. He fought President Taft and is fighting President Wilson just a little. He has already laid the foundation for his fight with our next President Hughes, by declaring in favor of Wilson's Mexican policy. This is one of the big issues of this campaign. He is fighting our Governor Philipp and the state and national republican platforms. He fights everything and everybody that does not promote him in office; so much so that ex-Governor Hoard calls him "an arch-demagogue."

The senator is not entitled to a republican vote. He is not a republican at all. In the Madison State Journal, the leading La Follette paper in the state, and now supporting Wilson, La Follette and Hutton, the writer of an article published August 15th, said that Senator La Follette was "elected by the combined votes of democrats, republicans, and socialists." That as a good excuse for the senator's desertion of the republican party. Do the republicans of this state want to line up with the La Follette democrats and the socialists?

This year the people of Wisconsin have an opportunity of electing to the United States senate a republican and true blue American citizen. Malcolm G. Jeffris believes in the principles of the republican party, is supporting its platform and candidates without halt or reservation, believes in protecting the flag of his country and its honor and in making the preparation necessary for that protection.

HIGH FOOD PRICES.

The government crop report issued a few days ago is ominous in its suggestions as to prices of food staples. Staples are jumping on the produce exchanges, and the poor man will be squeezed before another spring.

The abundant crops of the past few years had no appreciable effect to lower prices. The surplus was taken by fighting Europe. Europe is still bidding high for cereals and there is a shortage of production here. It may reasonably be expected that wheat and corn products will go to the highest figures ever known.

The injury to the corn crop makes the cost of feeding hogs high. Pork and bacon, the poor man's friends, will again be away up. Beef already sells at nearly prohibitive prices for working people.

Of course the country as a whole is prosperous. Millions of working people have had their wages raised. But it is not enough that they should be able barely to meet expenses. A family life is not securely established unless it has a bank account and a constant margin between income and outgo.

The pinch comes in a host of families that are suffering from some form of misfortune. In many the bread-winner is the victim of accident or disease. In others drunkenness and other vices have sapped the earning power, leaving wives and children to shift for themselves. In all such cases the rising cost of food products means a lack of nutritious food.

It is a time for small economies and the teaching of intelligent methods of food preparation. It is often remarked that a French family would live on what an American household throws away. Teaching a poor family how to get the most nourishment out of a given supply of foods is a better form of charity than giving money outright.

Under the intelligent methods of campaigning now popular, just as the candidate speaking from local platforms gets through with local commitments and begins to mention the issues of the campaign, the train moves on.

The fact that on the camping trip the boys can help wipe dishes for their vigorous and athletic girl friends, does not prove that at home they could assist their tired mothers in the same way.

The people along the route of Mr. Hughes' trip are deciding how to vote according to a careful and discriminating study whether he is a better hand-shaker than President Wilson.

Formerly the senatorial candidates had to buy the legislatures, but in these better and purer days, they merely have to pay ten cents a name to circulators of nomination papers.

The hungry soldier who steals a doughnut should of course be sent to jail, while the fat congressman who refuses to vote for supplies for the soldiers should be re-elected.

There are thirteen states that have only 2,500 national guardsmen on the border, but they make up for it by their patriotic defiance hurled at the Mexicans.

Exciting times are reported from the seafarers in the country, watching for people to go by the house once in an hour, and going to bed at eight o'clock.

The necessity of sitting out to watch for the submarines is of course leading the young people to keep very late hours at all the Atlantic shore resorts.

It is surprising how much more rent you can get for a summer cottage when it has a water tank that will stay filled for twenty-four hours after a rain.

Mr. Hughes having demanded a new birth of American courage, the country is responding nobly by daring to bet its money on the ball games.

Another excellent way to celebrate Fricke Chicken day, September 1, is with a dinner of creamed salt fish and dried kidney beans.

The Daily Novelette

A FRIEND OF THE INDUSTRY.

"Tricks in all trades,"
The florist said,
Then dyed his vellets,
A deep, dark red.

"Twas the day before the circus came to town, that the following advertisement appeared in the Janesville Guardian-Preceptor: 'Fifty dollar prize for the most perfect fifteen pound block of glass presented at Hickson's Grand Central hotel before noon tomorrow. By a friend of the Industry.'"

Now as Blowville was the greatest glass manufacturing town in the northeastern part of the middle west, interest and competition were rife, and at noon on the appointed day, fifteen expert glassblowers with fifteen pound blocks of glass assembled in Hickson's Grand Central hotel, capacity, 7 guests.

"Good-day, friends," beamed the friend of the industry, a large gentleman with gold in his teeth and diamonds in his shirt, who immediately began inspection of the prize entries.

"The two score and ten from men go to this gentleman with the classic sideburns," announced the friend of the industry at length. And he forked them over and departed with Ambrose Tossie's flawless block of glass.

From that day forward the friend of the glass-blowing industry, in reality the glass-blowing industry, in lemonade privilege, netted a perfect block of glass gleamed for 15 years in our hero's twelve gallon bowl of warm lemonade.

Work and Worry.
Whatever you don't worry about the work, but go about doing the work, and thus you'll soon do the worry, also.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

Let 'Em Talk.
If a feller stays at home, everybody says he's heepeked.
That he's a mollycoddle with no soul to call his own.
If a feller stays out nights, everybody says he's sporty.
That his wife had ought to quit him and let him go on alone.
If a feller does his worst, all the gossips jump upon him.
And they criticize him, too, if he tries to walk to do is to do just what you want to;
Just be natural and then let the dogsone critics talk.

Gaining a Fortune.
A short time ago I noticed an advertisement in one of the 15-cent magazines which interested me. It read: "SEND US ONE DOLLAR and we will tell you just how to amass a great fortune."

The more I read the advertisement the more it impressed upon me that this was just what I wanted to do. I had done almost everything else in my life and amassing a fortune would be a new experience to me. I imagined that it would be a pleasant experience as several of my neighbors who had amassed fortunes seemed to be enjoying life.

My wife had often told me that I should amass a great fortune and this magazine advertisement happened along just at the psychological moment. I wasn't doing anything else at the time and I felt I could expend a little energy on this matter without having it detract from my other business affairs. Amassing a great fortune!

Strange, indeed, that I never had thought of it until I read the advertisement.

I sent the dollar and broke the news to my wife. We are about to amass a great fortune," said I. "Of course it will change our social status to some extent. We will move in the six cylinder set, whereas heretofore we have been in the runabout class."

Of course my wife went out immediately and blew $400 for clothes and I placed a mortgage on the house and bought a larger automobile than the present roaster which we had when we thought of amassing a great fortune.

In due time we received a letter from the first which had advertised in the magazine. The letter read: "Dear Sir: We said we would tell you how to amass a great fortune. The way to amass a great fortune is to make a great deal of money and hang onto it."

A Blighted Romance.
It was not long ago I met her. Gosh! I never shall forget her. She was pretty, she was witty, and a vision on the dead. But she turned me down completely and informed me very sweetly.

That another Lovelorn brother was the one that she would wed. Then I thought of suiciding. And for days I kept in hiding. I was crazy, I was hazy, and the world was naught to me. But before I pulled the trigger, I just started in to figger I would finger.

Of old Fate was kind to me. Now I'm glad I didn't get her. And I'm very glad I let her Lovelorn brother.

Though the sentiment sounds mean. For she now is suffering. And her husband is just getting over a fever.

So they tell me Where she soaked him on the bean.

Collarless Cyclone DAVIS BEATEN, NOW SUES FOR $50,000

Alleging that Paul Waples, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee, wilfully omitted to place his name on the printed ballots as Cyclone Davis, and instead placed it there under the name of J. H. Davis, the well-known Texas character, J. H. (Cyclone) Davis has filed suit for the sum of fifty thousand dollars against Waples. Cyclone Davis alleges that few people knew him under the name of J. H. Davis, and, further, that the omission cost him over 50,000 votes, enough to allow his opponent the advantage.

Where Wisdom Lies.
I say wisdom is gathered on foot, along country roads. Collect your ideas where you can: from alley, boulevard, office, lecture hall, theater, dinner table, library, wharf, picture gallery, street car, opera house, curbstone, or courtroom; but test them on the road. Confronted with the realities of soil and salt water and the character shaped by these, they will look vastly less momentous or vastly more so.—Seymour Dening in the Atlantic.

"Kleptomaniac."
Kleptomania, or the impulse to steal, is a controverted obsession, especially when a poor person yields to the desire, for, of course, there would be an end to all jailing for such delinquencies were the admission made too generally of mental irresponsibility when things are absent-mindedly appropriated. But when the appropriator is well off and the article "swiped" is absurd the verifiability of kleptomania may be admitted medico-legally, so that it becomes a luxury denied to poverty, just as the difference between inebriety and drunkenness is a matter of cash.—Exchange.

Varieties of the Peanut.
Roughly speaking, three varieties of peanut are grown in this country—red, white and Spanish. The white, the most important variety, has a nut with two kernels with pink skins; its vine spreads along the ground, in this respect unlike that of the red variety, which grows more upright and in a bunch. The pod of the red nut holds three and sometimes four kernels, and has a deep red skin. The Spanish is a much smaller nut, with a lighter skin and milder flavor than either of the others possesses. The entire crop is shelled and used especially in the confection known as nougat.

"Nutshell."
"That crazy nut over there got so violent yesterday the warden had to put him in a straitjacket," said the guard at the insane asylum. "Umph!" said the facetious visitor, "that's what I call putting it in a nutshell."

Human Lobsters.
Many women are like the species of lobster which, if left upon the rocks by the receding tide, waits for the returning tide to float it from its temporary prison. There on the rocks it would remain to die, although a slight effort would enable it to reach the waves, tossing only a few feet below. There are many human lobsters, mere "hangers on" of society, who are entertaining themselves with the idea that because they are women they are to be helped without putting forth any effort themselves.

Pity the Poor Dyspeptic.
"Back home" we used to gather around the piano of an evening, a God-fearing, respectable family, and hold orgies of sentimental melody, seeing Nellie home, and imploring the winds of heaven to bring back our Bonnie to us. To a chance dyspeptic sitting on the hydrant outside, it must have been sickening—Robert M. Gay, in the Atlantic.

CLAIM 8,000 ATTEND ROCK COUNTY EXHIBIT

Evansville Fair Officials This Afternoon Announce Figures for Today's Attendance.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Evansville, Aug. 18.—Rock county fair officials at two o'clock this afternoon estimated an attendance of eight thousand people on the grounds, the largest crowd that ever attended on any one day in the history of the exhibit.

Visitors to the fair began arriving early this morning and every train into the city from both directions was crowded. A large force of special police officers handled the crowd with precision and quickly solved repeated traffic congestions. It seems that about every farmer's rig and automobile in a vicinity of ten or fifteen miles was in the city today.

Footville Trounces Oregon.
The Oregon baseball team received a terrible rubbing at the hands of the Footville nine this morning. Eleven to nothing was the score. Oregon's donning of its coat of whitewash was witnessed by four thousand.

ORIGIN OF THE NECK RUFF

Said to Have Been Devised by a Spanish Princess for a Very Particular Reason.

It is said that the neck ruff, the sort worn by Queen Elizabeth, which may be considered as the ancestor of most of the modern starched muslin neckwear, was devised by a Spanish princess to cover a scar or blemish on her neck.

These dainty articles of apparel were considered a tremendous extravagance when they were first introduced into England. For they could not be worn after washing. England knew nothing of the art of starching and the starched muslin was imported from the continent.

Later some clever person, on the lookout for a new vocation, took lessons in starching, and set up a starching shop in London. Even then starched neckwear was considered a vanity. Philip Stubbes, who wrote many clever and satirical words about the fashions of his day—and published his writings in 1583—spoke of starch as the "devil's liquor."

In those days, as in these, the collar that flared high and wide at the back of the neck was held out with supports or underpinnings of wire, covered with gold thread, silver or silk.

Unjust Rebuke: Because a pedestrian was wiping off one of the newly installed bubblers drinking fountains on West Milwaukee street after two thirsty horses had sought to drink there, an extra police officer saw fit to use his authority and rebuked the citizen in a manner that was most objectionable. Had the officer been doing his duty the horses would not have muzzled the fountain and soiled it in the first place.

The Misses Gladys Rutter, Mamie James and Mamie Premo left today for a trip through the east to Buffalo, where they will view Niagara Falls.

Explaining Fluency of Speech.

The common fluency of speech in many men and most women is owing to a scarcity of matter and a scarcity of words; for whoever is a master of language and has a mind full of ideas, will be apt in speaking to hesitate upon the choice of both; whereas common speakers have only one set of ideas, and one set of words to clothe them in, and these are always ready at the mouth, so people come faster out of a church when it is almost empty than when a crowd is at the door.—Swift.

WHEN THEY PLAYED CROQUET

Writer Tells About the Game That Fascinated the Young People of His Generation.

In this age I fear everybody has nearly forgotten about the dear old-fashioned game of croquet. I remember the time back home when it was the thing, says a writer in the Jacksonville (Fla.) Times-Union.
Why, we used to gather over at Cheatham's hotel on a fine afternoon round at the shady side, and we village lads and lassies were in our glory.

Knock went the mallet against the ball, and we waited breathless for the ball to roll through the wicket.

Ah, such moments the excitement was intense. Every eye was fixed upon the result of the stroke and we thought the whole world was interested.

By crickety, we were some pumpkins. I tell you, at the old game. We didn't know anything about your modern baseball games, nor football games, nor polo, nor hockey, nor golf, nor motor-boat racing, nor motor-car racing, nor horse racing.

No, we didn't care anything about knowing, I bet you. As long as Sussie Green was my partner and we beat the other side, we didn't care whether school kept or not.

All we knew was that the game was exciting to us, and the birds sang for sheer joy in the magnolia and the roses nodded from the old front porch.

The long, long days of youth were ours and no business cares infested our world of dreams.

The old croquet game!

It would seem pretty tame to you of this fast age and you would chuckle and make fun of our enthusiasm, but we were happy, for we didn't know any better.

See Racine play Sunday at 3 P. M.

Your Child's Future
You expect to leave money! Of course! You are sure of your child's future while you live. But can you be so sure of what will follow your demise?
You expect to leave money! Of course! But money is a very transitory thing, and does not always work for the good. And as a child cannot manage money, a guardian must be appointed. Much care is necessary. Your foresight, however, should not end with the appointment of a guardian. How many of the boys and girls about you today are capable of managing money when they become of age? The answer must convince you that more than a guardian is necessary.
Then why not select a trustee whose judgment you trust and who will faithfully carry out your instructions as to what is best for your child when it becomes of age?
Guardianship and trusteeship are our business. Call and let us talk with you.

This Poster Conforms to Law.

There is one industry in the state where advertising is compulsory by law—horse breeding. Owners of Wisconsin stallions used for public service are required to issue properly printed posters truthfully describing their animals. This is done in order to protect patrons against possible fraud.

To men interested in improving the standard of Wisconsin horses it means much just how these public-service stallions are advertised. In former times it was common for non-descript horses to be advertised as pure breeds and described in glowing adjectives, set in bold-faced type, accompanied by a "stock cut" showing a proud, high-stepping trotter or a majestic, iron-muscled drafter, as the case might be. This form of questionable business almost put the advance agents of one-circus to shame. Most patrons of these inferior stallions only found this out when it was too late.

According to present law, enforced by the department of horse breeding of the University of Wisconsin, there is a penalty of from $10 to $50 fine, or 90 days in jail, or both, for violation of the rules governing stallion advertising.

Although ignorance of the law excuses no offender, it is well to give publicity to this important matter of regulating advertising of stallions so that breeders may be on their guard against new violations.

Here are the points required to make a stallion poster legal:

The breeding of the horse in question, whether "pure bred," "grade," "cross breed," or "mongrel or scrub," must be used to head the poster. Such designating word must be set in type as large as the size of type used in printing the posted name of the horse. The enrollment certificate number filed with the department of horse breeding, must be placed in the same position it occupies on the original certificate, and must not be displayed at the top of the poster.

The pedigree of a pure-bred sire of a grade stallion cannot be used on the poster advertising a grade stallion in such a way as to make it appear that the sire's pedigree is that of the offspring. The breeding of the dam of the grade must be as clearly stated as the breeding of the pure-bred sire.

A correct copy of the stallion's enrollment certificate must be used on each poster. This must be printed in bold-faced type not smaller than "long primer," or ten point, a clause in the law which printers must carefully observe, or well-meaning patrons may get into trouble.

To illustrate the poster, a cut made from the photograph of the stallion is preferable. It is illegal to use the cut of a pure-bred stallion of any breed upon the poster advertising a grade or scrub horse. Unless the cut is made from the photograph of the stallion advertised, the name of the stallion cannot be printed beneath it.

A poster before and after it had passed "the board of censors" is shown herewith. The first one violated the law because it did not have the words "mongrel or scrub" printed in as large type as the name of the stallion; neither should the cut of a pure-bred horse have been used as an illustration in this case. A glance at the revised edition shows the difference produced upon a reader's mind by properly displaying the breeding of the animal.

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

A woman's prominent magazine is conducting a crusade against unclean magazines and moving pictures. In a recent issue the editor asked, "Is the American public essentially clean-minded?" and "Does the American public want clean entertainment, clean moving pictures?"

"Is the purveyor of unclean, suggestive stories and pictures appealing only to a minority, and if so, is it a minority that is diminishing or being recruited?"

These are some of the questions the editor of the magazine asked. Excerpts from some of the letters received by him are very interesting, especially one that tells of a visit to a California movie house.

The writer had just watched the director stage a certain vulgar scene.

"Why in the world do you put on a scene like that? You know it will be censured," said the visitor.

"Oh, well," replied the director, "it will get by in nearly every state, so what's the difference?"

A recent five-reel picture on a regatta feature program had absolutely nothing to recommend itself to an exhibitor or an audience. The story was old and silly, the star was young and silly, the acting atrocious and the staging ditto. But it contained one scene wherein the heroine suddenly decided to take a swim and the wind blew her clothes off the rock.

"Yes, but that one scene will pack your house," said the picture's strongest selling point.

NEVER ACTORS NEVER DRAW SALARY

Just at the present time there are a number of movie comedians who do not appear on the pyro. Some of them are well known to audiences throughout the country, while still others are just beginning to win the admiration of theatergoers who enjoy good screen fun.

Perhaps one of the best known is "Luke," the bulldog owned by Roscoe Arbuckle. Luke has appeared in any number of comedies and will act, yes, really act, for so long as five minutes while his master directs him.

Arbuckle claims Luke understands the meaning of at least five hundred words. Luke has a number of imitations that are given him.

Two expensive treadmills have been installed at the William Fox studios to be used for close-ups of a racing scene in a new picture.

William S. Hart, admittedly America's premier interpreter of rugged frontier types, has the leading role in "The Primal Lure," Triangle-Ince production of Vingie E. Roe's celebrated novel of the same name, adapted for the screen by J. G. Hawley of the Ince staff. It will be seen at the Beverly theatre on Saturday.

The Primal Lure is an absorbing drama of life in the great Canadian Northwest. It recites the stirring romance of Angus McConnell, a young Scotch-Canadian factor, and Lois Le Moyne, daughter of a French settler at the post. It is replete with thrilling encounters with the Blackfeet Indians and teems with a love interest rivaling in its appeal only by the picturesque beauty of the story's background.

100 YEARS OLD

The kidneys play a most important part in causing premature old age and death—the more injurious the poisons passing thru the kidneys the sooner comes decay—so says a distinguished physician, who further advises all people who are past thirty to preserve the vitality of the kidneys and free the blood from poisonous elements, such as uric acid—to drink plenty of pure water—sweat some every day and take "Anuric" before meals.

This "Anuric" is put up in tablet form, and can be obtained at almost any drug store. For that backache, lumbago, rheumatism, "rusty" joints, swollen feet or hands, due to uric acid in the blood, "Anuric" quickly dissolves the uric acid as hot water does sugar. It was discovered by Dr. Pierre of Buffalo, N. Y.

Prevent old age by simply sipping a cup of hot water every morning before breakfast, take a little "Anuric" before meals and live to be a hundred.

Resinol
certainly does heal
eczema

In our file of reports, covering a period of twenty years, literally thousands of physicians tell how successful the Resinol treatment is for eczema and similar skin troubles. The first use of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap usually stops the itching and burning, and they soon clear away all trace of the eruption. No other treatment for the skin now before the public can show such a record of professional approval.

Sold by all druggists.

Hair Often Ruined
By Washing With Soap

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulled coconut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rises out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and even the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulled coconut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.

If Too Fat Get
More Fresh Air

BE MODERATE IN YOUR DIET AND
REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT. TAKE—OIL OF KOREIN.

Lack of fresh air is said to weaken the oxygen carrying power of the blood, the liver becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heart action becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the figure is destroyed.

Fat put on by indoor life is unhealthy and it nature is not assisted in throwing it off a serious case of obesity may result.

When you feel that you are getting too stout, take the matter in hand at once. Don't wait until your figure has become a joke and your health ruined through carrying around a burden of unsightly and unhealthy fat.

Spend as much time as you possibly can in the open air; breathe deeply, and get from Smith Drug Co. or any druggist a box of oil of korein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night.

Weigh yourself every few days and keep up the treatment until you are down to normal. Oil of korein is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps the digestion and even a few days' treatment has been reported to show a noticeable reduction in weight.

As a means of disposing of your real estate, the little want ads are sure winners.

The moment was painful; Lorelei's eyes were dim, and she hardly saw the dreary prospect of fire escapes, of whitewashed brick, of bare, gaping back yards overhung with clotheslines, like nerves exposed in the process of dissection.

"Money, Money: You Both Wor-

"Yes, things will go on just the same," she repeated, then clenched her hands and burst forth miserably. "Oh, I know how badly you need money! I know what the doctor says, and I'll get it somehow. It seems to me I'll pay any price just to see dad walking around again and to know that you were both provided for. Money, money! You both worship it, and I'm getting so I can't think of anything else. Nothing else seems worth while."

Two hours later a dray called for her trunks and took them across town. The Elegancia apartments looked down on her with chill disapproval as she entered; the elevator man stared at her with black, hostile eyes until she had made herself known; and even the superintendent—in a less pretentious structure than the Elegancia—would have been the janitor—now that "No. 6" was rented, did not extend even a perfunctory welcome as he delivered the keys. On the contrary, he made known the exclusive character of the house in such a pointed manner as to offend her.

Lilas was out, she learned, which probably meant that she was still asleep. Lorelei ascended to her new home in low spirits. Now that she saw the place in strong daylight, she was vaguely disappointed. She was very lonely, very friendless, and very much discouraged. Then she noticed the telephone and sprang toward it.

Adoree was at home; her voice answered cheerily, and her interruptions of amazement and delight caused Lorelei's message to spin itself out unduly. Without waiting for an invitation Adoree cried:

"Let me come and help. Please! We'll use both the poodles for mops, and I'll be there in ten minutes. You're a perfect dear to say yes, for I know you want to do it all yourself." "Come now—quickly. I'm scared—" Lorelei begged, in tearful tones.

"I'll drive right up in my chariot of flame; I was going out, and it's waiting while I kalsomine my face. Are you sure everything is good and dirty? Good! We'll do it ourselves. Good-bye."

occupants dressed and went out to a nearby hotel for dinner. Returning, they put the final touches to their task. When Adoree left, late that night, she kissed her friend, saying:

"Thank you for the loveliest Sunday I ever had. It was splendid, and I'll come again tomorrow."

The theatrical profession is full of women whose lives are flawless; hence it had not been difficult for Lorelei to build up a reputation that insured respect, although her connection with a Bergman show made the task more difficult than it would otherwise have been. During the two years of her stage experience no scandal had attached to her name, and she had therefore begun to feel secure. In that period she had met many men of the usual type that are attracted by foot-light favorites, and they had pressed attentions upon her, but so long as she had been recognized as the Lady Unobtainable they had not forced their unwelcome advances. Now, however, that a scurrilous newspaper story had associated her name with that of a wealthy man, she began to note a change. Bergman's advances had been only another disquieting symptom of what she had to expect—an indication of the new color her reputation had assumed.

Nobel Bergman's commercial caution steered him wide of the moral women in his employ, but the other kind, and especially the innocent or the inexperienced, had cause to know and to fear him. In appearance he was slender and foppish; he affected a pronounced waist line in his coats, his eyes were large and dark and brilliant, his mouth was sensual. He never raised his voice, he never appeared to see plain women; such girls as accepted his attentions were sure of advancement, but paid for it in other ways.

On Monday evening Mr. Slosson, the press agent, thrust his head through the dressing-room door and announced to Lorelei:

"Bergman says Mrs. Thompson-Bellaire is giving a box party, and she told him to fetch you around for supper. She owns a piece of this show, and the theater belongs to the estate, so you'll just have to go."

"Mercy! Mrs. Thompson-Bellaire, the college boy's shiny godmother," Lilas mocked. "I suppose she's out shuffling with her kindergarten class."

Slosson frowned at this level. "Will you go?" he inquired. "Yes or no?" "Um—m—I'll have to say 'yes,' it seems."

"Good. I'll phone Bergman."

When the press agent had gone Lilas regarded her companion with open compassion. "Gee! But you're going to have a grand time. That bunch think it's smart to be seen with show people, and of course they'll dance all night."

"And I did so want to go straight back to my new home!" When she joined her employer after the show she was in no very agreeable frame of mind.

Mrs. Thompson-Bellaire was a vermilion-haired widow with a chest like a blacksmith, who had become famous for her jewels and her social eccentricities. She and her party were established at one of the uptown "Tivoli-tres," when Nobel Bergman and Lorelei arrived. Three examples of blushing boyhood devoted themselves to a languid blonde girl of thirty-five, and the hostess herself was dancing with another tender youth, but she came forward, panting.

"So good of you to come, dear," she cried. "This is Miss Wyeth, and these are my boys, Mr.—" She spoke four meaningless names, and four meaningless smiles responded; four wet-combed heads were bowed. She turned to her blonde companion, saying "She is pretty, isn't she, Alice?"

"Very," Alice agreed, without removing her eyes from the youth at her left. Bergman invited Lorelei to finish the dance; then he inquired, "What do you think of her?"

"Her hair fascinates me; she looks as if she had just burst out of a thicket of henna leaves." Bergman laughed, silently. "But why did she invite me?" "I told her to."

"You?" "I knew you'd refuse if I asked you."

Bergman, who devoted himself assiduously to his employee, showing more effect from it than the others. As the night wore on he became more and more offensive; he grew coarse in a shy, tentative manner, as if feeling his ground. He changed the manner of his dancing, also, until Lorelei could no longer tolerate him.

"Getting tired, my dear?" he queried, when she declined to join the whirling throng.

"Yes. I want to go."

"Still on Amsterdam avenue?"

"No, I'm living alone—now."

Bergman started, his eyes brightened. "Ah! Then you've come to your senses finally. Merkle fixed it—eh? I can do more for you than Merkle can."

"Merkle?" She eyed him coolly. "Oh, play your game with strangers, but don't put me off. Weren't you caught with him at the Chateau? Well, then—"

"You needn't finish. I'm going home now."

He laid a detaining hand upon her arm. "You never learned that speech in one of my shows," he said, "and you're not going to say good night to me. Understand?" He grinned at her with disgusting confidence, and she flung off his touch. The returning dancers offered a welcome diversion.

Lorelei dreaded an open clash with the manager, knowing that the place, the hour and the conditions were ill suited to a scene. She had learned to smile and to consider swiftly, to cross the thin ice of an embarrassing situation with light steps. Quickly she turned to Mrs. Thompson-Bellaire, who was bowing effusively to a newcomer.

"My word! What is Bob Wharton doing here?" exclaimed the widow.

"Bob Wharton? Where?" Miss Wyeth's languor vanished electrically; she wrenched her attention from the wire-haired fraternity man at her side. Lorelei felt a sense of great thanksgiving.

Mrs. Thompson-Bellaire beckoned, and Wharton came forward; his eyes fixed gloomily upon Lorelei.

"You rascal! So this is how you waste your evenings. I am surprised, but now that we've caught you, won't you join us?"

Wharton glanced at the four pawns and hesitated. "It's long past nine; I'm afraid the boys will be late for school."

Miss Wyeth tittered; the sophomore with the bustling pompadour uttered a bark of amusement. Meeting Bob's questioning glance, Lorelei seconded the invitation with a nod and a quick look of appeal, whereupon his demeanor changed and he drew a chair between her and Nobel Bergman, forcing the latter to move. His action was pointed, almost rude, but the girl felt a surge of gratitude sweep over her.

There was an interlude of idle chatter, then the orchestra burst into full clamor once more. Much to the chagrin of her escort, Lorelei rose and danced away with the newcomer.

"Why the distress signal?" queried Bob.

"Mr. Bergman has—been drinking." "Rum is poison," he told her, with mock indignation. "He must be a low person."

"He's getting unpleasant."

"Shall I take him by the nose and run around the block?"

"You can do me a favor."

"He was serious in an instant. 'You were nice to me the other night, I'm sorry to see you with this fellow.' 'He forced—' he deceived me into coming, and he's taking advantage of conditions to—be nasty.'"

Bob missed a step, then apologized. His next words were facetious, but his tone was ugly: "Where do you want the remains sent?"

"Will you wait and see that mine are safely sent home?" She tensed back, and her troubled twilight eyes besought him.

"I'll wait, never fear. I've been looking everywhere for you. I wanted to find you, and I didn't want to. I've been to every cafe in town. How in the world did you fall in with the old bell-cow and her calf?"

When Lorelei had explained, he nodded his complete understanding. "She's just the sort to do a thing like that."

Dinner
Stories

A New Yorker, who found himself for some days in a "jerk-water" town of the West, was obliged to submit to the ministrations of the local barber. He had a terrible time—he was cut, knicked, gashed, and generally mishandled. When the job was completed the New Yorker sat up and said:

"You ain't a drink of water."

"No," was the response, "I just hold water."

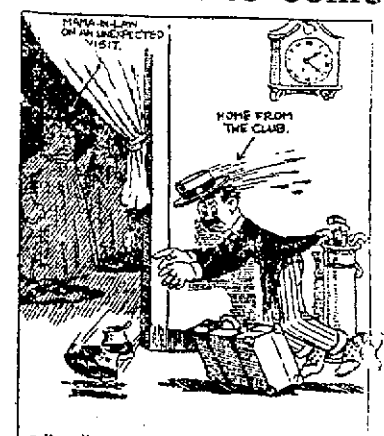

Philip is an amateur artist who raves about nature. One day he was giving all his attention to a painting of a sunset of lurid red, with blue streaks and green dots. An old rustic crossed the meadow and stopped behind him at a respectful distance.

"Ah," said Philip, looking up at the old farmer suddenly, "perhaps to you, too, nature has opened her sky pictures, page by page. Have you seen the lambent flame of dawn leaping across the livid east; the red-stained, sulphurous islets floating in the lake of fire in the west; the ragged clouds at midnight, black as a raven's wing, bottling out the shuddering moon?"

"Well, no," replied the rustic, "not since I gave up drink."

Jimmie had a scolding wife, but was never willing to admit it.

"Now, Jimmie," said a fellow workman one day, "doesn't your wife really scold sometimes?"

ATHLETICS DETAIN BROWNS TEMPORARILY

Philadelphia Takes First Game of Double Bill But St. Louis Gets Victory in the Second.

The Athletics temporarily detained the Browns in their first game of the season, winning the first game of the double bill yesterday in ten innings, 4 to 3, but Pledger Jones' hired men came back and took the second, 3 to 2. Joe Bush, the only Athletics pitcher who wins with consistency, singled to start the tenth inning of the first game. With bunted and was safe on Austin's fumble. Sister then threw wildly on Walsh's bunt and the bases were full. Strunk forced Bush at the plate on a grounder to Pratt and then Davenport was sent in to relieve Pratt. He walked Schang, forcing in Pratt with the winning run. Davenport stayed in for the second game and was effective. Pratt's homer in the sixth gave the Browns their victory.

THREE AUTO RACES, SEPT. 9 AT INDIANAPOLIS SPEEDWAY

Indianapolis, Aug. 18.—Three first auto races, to be known as the program for the Harvest Auto Racing Classic will be the attraction offered Saturday, Sept. 9, at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway. The first race will be a twenty mile event, the second will be for fifty miles, and the third will be for 100 miles. A request has been made of the contest board of the American Automobile Association to make the 100 mile race a championship event. The date for the race originally was Sept. 4, but the opening of the Cincinnati speedway on that date caused the time to be changed. All entries must be made by Sept. 5. A large crowd is expected because the race comes at the close of the State Fair.

OLD MAN TO SEE BROADWAY WITH SON JOINING MAJORS

Indianapolis, Aug. 18.—Now dad can see Broadway. Such was the remark of Paul "Nick" Carter, leading pitcher for the Indianapolis American Association club, when informed he had been sold to the Chicago Nationals. Carter said his father had long desired to see the bright lights of New York, and that he would have his father with him the first time he goes to New York with the Cubs.

Carter, who joined the Cubs today, pitched his last game in Indianapolis Aug. 1, when he defeated Louisville 11 to 1, making his fifteenth victory in the association.

AUTO STARS ENTER INDIANAPOLIS RACES

Aitken and Merz, racing stars, are both entering several events in the big Harvest Day Auto Racing Classics booked for the Indianapolis speedway on September 10. Aitken will captain the Peugeot team and both are entered in the 20, 50 and 100-mile championship events. Merz's cool head and daring driving makes him a favorite in the events he has entered.

ROWLANDS SHUT OUT BOSTON SOX, 7-0

Rob Russell Holds World Champions and Chicago Sox With Air Tight Support Take Game.

Rob Russell took a swipe at the Red Sox yesterday and after nine innings with the brush the Chicago Sox had collected a total of seven (allies and white wash). Russell pitched great ball and the support behind him was just as good. Neither team had a boot, chalked against them.

The White Sox gathered twelve hits, a good sprinkling of extra bases being in the mess. Rays was hit hard in the first and again in the fifth. Jones came on during the latter part of the struggle, but the Rowlands had their batting legs on and he was of little use to the home team, being hit just as much as his teammate.

SUNDAY OPPONENTS HAVE STRONG LINE-UP

Racine Federals Composed of Classy Bunch.—Warhop, Former Yank, One of Their Pitchers.

Manager Ernest Johnson, Jr., of the Racine Federals, who clash with the Cardinals at the Driving Park diamond Sunday afternoon, in a letter this morning to Manager George Caldwel announced his lineup for the game.

For pitchers the Federals have Japson of the Lake Shore league, Warhop, old New York Yank American league twirler, and Frantz of the Northern league, rated as the best pitcher in the defunct W. I. league, will be on the receiving end. He formerly played with Appleton, Dubuque, a home boy, and Eckert, another Racine youngster, are at short and second respectively. Reynolds of the Northern and Hilder of the Lake Shore are their first basemen, while at third Miller of Marshalltown and Kubiak of the Kosciusko of the Lake Shore circuit are used. In the outfield are Javek of the Lake Shore, Jones, a home find, and Schanok of Iowa.

To Cardinal fans who are acquainted with the playing of a number of the players Johnson has in his aggregation, it appears that the Cards are going to have more or less opposition Sunday. Manager Caldwell is preparing for a stiff game and will have a team here to beat the Belle City tribe.

COBB'S BAT PRODUCTIONS GETS SEVEN HITS; TIGERS BEAT SENATORS TWICE

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

It was learned in Los Angeles baseball circles that Manager Mack of the Athletics is "arguing with the Vernon club for Art Fromme, former major league star, and Charles "Swede" Risberg. Fromme was a star in the majors at the time he left for the minors. He was a brainy pitcher and this is just the kind of man Mack is looking for. The Athletics are completely demoralized, and all Mack's efforts to strengthen the team have gone for naught. The days of old he was able to take a young pitcher and develop him into a star, but everything seems to have gone wrong. Promising youngsters, but they fail, despite his untiring efforts.

New Connie Mack seems to believe that old heads are needed on the team.

And Mack has turned his eyes toward this city for aid. The Athletic manager has written Ed Maier, president of the Vernon club, asking whether Art Fromme or "Swede" Risberg would be placed on the market. Mack also said in his letter that he would send a scout out to look the two players over if Maier would sell them.

It seems as though Connie Mack wants to sign Fromme to a two or three-year contract. His work on the Athletics team would not only be to pitch, but to be black with the young players, young pitchers especially. Mack is certain that Fromme would be a big winner in the majors. With Fromme's aid Mack is certain that within two years the Athletics would be the Athletics of old.

The St. Louis Cardinals are still negotiating for Bodie, however and it seems generally understood that the Seals' slugger will go to them next year.

"Honius Wagner is the greatest ball player that ever lived," is the assertion of William Chase Temple, donor of the famous Temple cup, and one of the best judges of ball players the game has ever known.

The National forty-five years—since the Athletics began—have seen every star that ever flashed in the baseball firmament," added Temple. There were many brilliant ones in the past, there are scintillating performers today. But none can compare with peerless Wagner. He is the super ball player—the most wonderful of them all.

"Some few players of the past or present may have shaded Wagner in one or another department of the game—but none can compare with him in all-around ability."

Wagner never was ranked among the graceful shortstops—but who can name a player of the present—or the past—who really outshone the amazing Honius as a ground coverer? Wagner may be clumsy and awkward in his movements, yet, today, at the age

THE CENSOR? WELL, PERHAPS HE KNOWS FEW THINGS HIMSELF

At Least War Office Men Are Quite Adept at Finding Out Soldiers' Little Secrets.

London, Aug. 18.—"The censor is not the damn fool you take him to be." The above line was penned by a British censor upon a letter from an officer at the front to his wife, in which an ingenious code was discovered. It meant to disclose to the anxious wife just where her husband was fighting, but it was spoiled by the censor and an order was issued by the war office prohibiting such practices.

Before the officer who wrote the code letter left for the front he secured two maps showing the entire British fighting line. The maps were identical. One he left with his wife and the other he took with him. Thereafter, each time he wrote a letter, he placed the stationery on his map, stuck a pin through it, directly over Paris, another directly over Brussels, and a third at the point where he was stationed. Upon receiving the letter his wife would superimpose it on the map, adjusting the extreme pinholes over Paris and Brussels, and her husband's whereabouts would be indicated by the middle hole.

FARMERS TO ORGANIZE TO GET GOOD SPRING PRICES

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 18.—Spring wheat growers through both the Dakotas and Minnesota will tomorrow confer here on a plan to combine and demand what they consider legitimate prices for their grain.

O. S. Morris of the editorial department of the Non Partisan Leader, Fargo, will be one of the speakers. The leader is the organ of the Farmers' Party that recently swept North Dakota in a political primary victory. "Each raiser of spring wheat will get a chance to tell of the cost of production of spring wheat," said Mr. Morris today. "We shall then add a reasonable profit and arrive at a reasonable price per bushel. When the price isn't paid, farmers will be equipped to store the wheat a sufficient period of time to command the proper price. Discrimination must be stopped."

Milwaukee, Aug. 18.—The Leidersdorf property, the "flower garden" of Milwaukee, is to be razed and a hotel within a short time. The property, which consists of a block at Eleventh and National avenues, contained one of the most beautiful gardens in the middle west. It was the hobby of A. H. ## FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Friday, Aug. 18, 1876.—The tax list will be put in the hands of the city treasurer this week.

John Griffith laid a new sidewalk, this forenoon, in front of his hardware store.

The Red Stockings of Freeport have arrived in the city, and will meet the Mutuals on the battlefield this afternoon.

There are only eight candidates for sheriff of Rock county. Seven of them are confident they will secure the nomination.

Some Happy Hollow fellows came to the city last evening, got boozed, fell into trouble, made up a fight, and one of them had his chin badly bitten.

Christ and Trinity churches will hold a picnic next Wednesday, if the weather allows. It includes a long ride on the "Lotos" and a basket supper at Brook's Grove.

The grading of Court street will be delayed three or four weeks, probably on account of some "unavoidable errors" in the original proceedings. The matter will be very soon straightened out and the work completed early in the fall.

Miss Ina Bates returned from the Centennial this afternoon, having spent one week among the great sights at the exposition.

Prof. R. W. Burton and wife returned from the east today.

Henry Quinn, second son of F. Quinn, Esq., left on the sixteenth for Burr Robbins' show. He will play in the band during the remainder of the season.

White blotting paper is saturated with aniline black and several sheets are pasted together so as to form a thick paste. When required for use a small piece is torn off and covered with a little water. This makes a good writing ink. A square inch of paper will produce enough ink to do considerable writing and a few pads would be all that an exploring party need carry with them. As water is always available the ink is readily made.

LA FOLLETTE FAILS TO SUPPORT HUGHES IS JEFFRIS' CHARGE

Senator Defends Wilson Administration, But Is Silent on Hughes While His Tariff Stand Is an Enigma.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Waupaca, Wis., Aug. 18.—"Mr. La Follette says he is a republican, but the papers supporting him in the state are advocating the election of President Wilson and commending the president's Mexican policy and Underwood tariff law. Charles R. Crane, a former Chicagoan, who sold his factory in Chicago for $15,000,000 and moved to Massachusetts, told a committee at the democratic national convention that four years ago he spent $150,000 backing La Follette for the nomination for president and saying in that, he spent a much larger sum to help elect Wilson president," said M. G. Jeffris, candidate for the United States senate, in an address here Thursday night.

Mr. Jeffris held the close attention of the crowd which filled the courthouse square, while double rows of autos lined the streets on all sides, and his remarks charging La Follette with antagonizing the republican candidate for president received hearty applause. "Is La Follette a republican?" he asked. He says in his speeches he is for a protective tariff, and in the first hour gives protective arguments and in the second hour gives free trade arguments, and when he is asked how he knows what he does stand for.

"La Follette is not supporting the republican candidate, Charles B. Hughes, for president, he does not mention Hughes in his speeches, and in every speech he claims Wilson's policy in Mexico was right, and that he voted for the Underwood tariff law to reduce the cost of living, but heaven knows it never reduced a cent. In fact, he is not supporting anybody, but La Follette and never has, and for the first time in history Wisconsin has a senator who tramples on every one who differs with him on crosses his path. For thirty-six years he has been before the public with the same cry, 'better watch out or the interests will get you,' but evidently this has lost its power, and new fake issues which can fool the people are getting scarce."

Speaks at Neenah Tonight.

Friday night Jeffris will speak at Neenah. On Saturday night he will go back to Rock County to be the principal speaker at a big celebration at Beloit.

Next Monday evening, Aug. 21, Mr. Jeffris will speak at Fond du Lac, on Tuesday night, Aug. 22, at Appleton, on Wednesday at the Trempealeau county fair at Galesville; on Wednesday night, Aug. 23, at La Crosse; Thursday morning at Sparta; Thursday afternoon, Aug. 24, he will speak at the Monroe county fair at Tomah, where he will speak twice in the evening, once in the city and once at the fair grounds.

La Follette at Oconomowoc.

Oconomowoc, Wis., Aug. 18.—A small audience greeted Senator Robert M. La Follette at Welch's hall, Oconomowoc, Thursday afternoon. Senator La Follette spoke at North Lake Thursday morning. He was introduced by Judge David W. Agnew of Wauchesa, and his address was principally on the record made by the various commissions instituted by him during his first term as governor of Wisconsin. He spoke at some length on the work accomplished by the railroad commission and of the dairy and food commission and also paid a compliment to the board of health for the manner in which they have carried on their work and especially in their work in the present infantile paralysis epidemic.

Opposes Preparedness.

Menomonee Falls, Wis., Aug. 18.—Senator La Follette in a speech here Thursday morning, declared that the public imagination has been fired by muckrakers, that there is no danger of war and "that there is not one substantial reason why this congress should double the appropriation for military purposes at this time."

La Follette charged that the campaign of big business has been carried on in picture shows, works of fiction in magazines, advertisements, editorials "alleging that our country is in danger from a foreign foe," in newspapers "given to spurious propaganda," all with the definite purpose of terrorizing the public.

INHERITANCE TAXES PRODUCE LARGE SUM

Over Five Million Dollars Collected in Wisconsin Since Law Went Into Effect in 1904.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 18.—Over five millions of dollars have been collected by the state since the inheritance tax law was put into effect in 1904 according to the announcement made by John Harrington, special inheritance tax collector for the Wisconsin tax commission. The receipts to the state from this source for the past year has just been compiled by Mr. Harrington and show a return of $465,863 for the past fiscal year. This is a decrease of over $100,000 from the year previous.

The indications are that the returns for the present fiscal year will be large. Counsel Harrington has just secured settlement from the estate of Albert W. Pettibone of La Crosse and Albert C. Ringling of Baraboo. The estate of the former was $1,020,531 and paid a tax of $21,536. The Ringling estate paid a tax of $29,406.

Following shows the returns under the inheritance tax law since its enactment:

Fiscal Year.	Amount
1904 (three months) .....	$ 14,639
1905 .....	125,964
1906 .....	103,954
1907 .....	206,458
1908 .....	245,653
1909 .....	449,000
1910 .....	283,566
1911 .....	348,033
1912 .....	763,520
1913 .....	924,699
1914 .....	436,081
1915 .....	581,904
1916 .....	465,863

The larger amounts which were collected several years ago were on estates that had not paid the inheritance tax when the law was first passed, but did after the act had been sustained in the courts.

TOBACCO PRICES TO CONTINUE TO SOAR

As announced in the Gazette some days ago the "Flying squadron" of buyers are playing havoc with former prices in the tobacco industry and farmers with good crops are obtaining top prices this season. The Edgerton Tobacco Reporter substantiates the Gazette's story with the following report:

The buying movement has developed into a fast and furious race to control the 1916 tobacco crop, the storm center having shifted from the northern to the southern growing section during the week. Prices have been forced up by the fierce competition in leaps and bounds, sometimes a cent or two over night. Every available buyer has been called into the field and it is quite probable the speed of the scramble to pay the growers prices they never expected to realize. It is claimed that over half the crop is already placed under contract by the most rapid buying ever experienced in this state. While streets have been cleaned up before breakfast and it is not uncommon for growers to entertain visits from ten to a dozen dealers each day. How long the whirlwind campaign can last is uncertain, but its end is not yet.

"We might quote easily a column or two sales, but a few topnotchers will suffice to show to what limit prices have reached:

"Very little of the crop will be harvested the coming week and the topping of quite a large percentage of it will be under way, but a good quarter or more has a good chance yet to grow before reaching a bud. The late fields have been making good progress of late, though rain is now needed for the finishing and ripening of the tobacco. The best of weather conditions must continue if a full crop is harvested.

The excitement of the field buying movement overshadows all else and the cured leaf market affords no news.

"The shipments out of storage reach 250 cases from this market to all points since last report.

"Seldom if ever has the field buying of the tobacco crop been driven harder than during the past week, nor has greater recklessness been exhibited in the making of sales. Fierce competition has driven up prices until the growers scarcely know what to ask. And in the main it is prospects largely that contracts have been closed. Since the day any of the crop has been harvested, not over one third of the crop has yet been topped and much of it from four to five weeks away from the shed. So the fate of the crop in general depends on the weather conditions of the coming few weeks. It needs an abundance of warm days to mature tobacco from this stage on. The season is late at best. Will the growers who have sold their crop at 15 cents or better wait for the tobacco to ripen before shedding? The temptation will be strong to harvest unripe leaf this year and then the troubles of the packer have only just commenced. For the benefit of all concerned we hope the crop passes all critical stages in the curing sheds, but there is a whole lot of contingencies that might arise.

The tobacco growers of the state who have kept themselves posted on the market conditions have been able to hold the situation well in hand this season. The great majority of them looked with disfavor upon the field buying movement, preferring to wait until the crop was made before contracting for its sale, and to combat the importunities of the buyer they laid a penalty of at least a couple cents a pound which the operators in their anxiety to control the more promising prospects have very generally paid. When a farmer is offered a few cents per pound more than he expected to obtain for his tobacco, it is quite apt to overcome any scruples he might have regarding the propriety of the transaction. It has taken some hammering to break down the prejudice but it has finally been accomplished though it has cost the buyers a good round figure to do it. If every thing goes right until delivery time the Wisconsin tobacco growers will be paid the best prices they have received since the 1906 crop, and bring into the state several millions of out-of-pocket money that will be reflected in an impetuous drive to business in the growing sections.

YES-- --MINUTES ARE DOLLARS

Time means money nowadays, more than ever before, and throughout your entire life, the hours, days and minutes may be measured in terms of dollars and cents.

You should no more waste the precious days of your youth in idleness or indecision than you should squander your money in a way you know to be foolish. The 'now' of your life is what you must utilize to prepare for the days and years to come.

THE YEARS SLIP SWIFTLY BY

Don't stand still. If you do, the next thing you realize is that you are slipping—slipping backward.

Every day, you see men and women who stood still in their youth. They depended on chance to better their condition, but opportunity never stopped at their door. They had the chance to study, to prepare for a better position in life—but they let it pass.

If today you are in the least undecided about your future, do not make the same mistake, but qualify yourself for some definite line of work in the world.

WOULD YOU SUCCEED IN BUSINESS?

If a career of business appeals to you, secure a thorough business training first. Make yourself competent to hold a good position.

Remember, it is but a step from the position of Stenographer to that of Private Secretary, then to the Head of a Department, Business Manager, or perhaps even higher.

Our school reproduces as nearly as possible the conditions of actual business and your course here will benefit you during your entire life, no matter what business you may be engaged in or what position you may fill.

We offer you thorough training courses in Shorthand, Typewriting, Bookkeeping, Stenotype, Spelling, English and those methods of business practice that are in use in modern business offices.

THINK OF THIS!

The U. S. Bureau of Education reports that the average wage of graduates of Business Colleges at the age of twenty-two years is $17.00 per week and at the age of thirty-two years, $25.00, while the average wage of graduates from the public schools is only $10.00 per week at twenty-two years and $10.20 at thirty-two. The report further says that men in responsible positions are drawn in large number from the former class.

MAKE THIS FALL AND WINTER COUNT

If you start now, by next spring you will be competent to take a position and advancement will then rest largely with you. Make this fall and winter a profitable one for you. If your days are occupied, spend a few hours each week in our Night School, which will open soon. Many a man has prepared himself for future success by spending the evening hours in well directed study.

Many young men and young women greatly handicap their chances for success in life through delay in making a start. They are persuaded that a business training in a good school will prove a direct stepping-stone to success for them. They see untimely passes, never to be open again.

YOUR TIME IS YOUR CAPITAL

Make the clock tick dollars for you instead of future regrets.

Decide now to begin to prepare yourself for a good business position. The first step is to investigate our methods of teaching Business Practice.

We will show you that our System is the successful one for young people. Let us show you the record of advancement made by other students—records that you could probably duplicate, probably better.

One large firm offers to employ all the young men we can prepare at $80 a month to begin with and advance to $95 to $130 at the end of 6 months. Another large firm will take all the young ladies we can prepare at $12 to $15 a week to begin. Why not prepare?
